

Faculty PRO on My Webpage

What will PRO put on my webpage?

Most of the content on your webpage can come from PRO (except for pictures, CV files, and links to personal webpages), including:

- Campus contact information (office number, phone, email address, etc.)
- Biographical information (teaching and research interests, etc.)
- Accepted for press and published Publications
- Presentations
- Educational history and highest degree earned
- Creative works
- Contracts/grants
- Awards/honors

Do I have to include all these fields?

No, only campus contact information is required. You have control over your page's content. Confer with your department's web admin if you wish to have only some of these fields included on your page or if you need non-PRO generated content updated.

What will my page look like?

This example shows the layout of your page's content and where in PRO it comes from:

The screenshot shows a faculty member's profile page for Chad R. Kraus. The page includes a portrait photo, a bio box, a contact box, a navigation menu, and a main content area. Callouts indicate the source of the content:

- From Personal Information, Teaching/Research Statements, BIO screen: Points to the bio box containing name, title, and education.
- From Personal Information, Teaching/Research Statements, BIO screen: Points to the contact box containing email, phone, and address.
- From Personal Information, Teaching/Research Statements, BIO screen: Points to the navigation menu items: Bio, Academics, Publications, Presentations, Contracts/Grants, Awards/Honors, and Creative Works.
- Selected by choosing "Display on web page?" on individual records in Publications, Presentations, Contracts/Grants, Awards/Honors, and Artistic Works screens: Points to the main content area showing a bio paragraph and an education section.

From Personal Information, Teaching/Research Statements, BIO screen

From Personal Information, Teaching/Research Statements, BIO screen

From Personal Information, Teaching/Research Statements, BIO screen

Selected by choosing "Display on web page?" on individual records in Publications, Presentations, Contracts/Grants, Awards/Honors, and Artistic Works screens

From Personal Information, Teaching/Research Statements, BIO screen

You can include your web biography; teaching, research, and service statements; and teaching and research keywords

ckraus CV (PDF)

Bio Academics Publications Presentations Contracts/Grants Awards/Honors Creative Works

Chad Kraus teaches architectural design, architectural theory, and the designbuild Dirt Works Studio at the University of Kansas. His approach to architecture is grounded in phenomenology. His scholarship concentrates on designbuild pedagogy and material research that strives to push the boundaries of and expand knowledge on earthen architecture as a highly sustainable and aesthetically potent approach to architecture. Prior to teaching, Chad studied architectural history and theory under Alberto Perez-Gomez and worked as a designer and project architect at Shigeru Ban Architects.

Education

M.Arch, History/Theory, McGill University

B.Arch, Kansas State University

Please visit pro.ku.edu for more information