

Faculty PRO on My Webpage

What will PRO put on my webpage?

Most of the content on your webpage can come from PRO (except for pictures, CV files, and links to personal webpages), including:

- Campus contact information (office number, phone, email address, etc.)
- Biographical information (teaching and research interests, etc.)
- Publications
- Presentations
- Educational history and highest degree earned
- Creative works
- Contracts/grants
- Awards/honors

Do I have to include all these fields?

No, only campus contact information is required. You have control over your page's content. Confer with your department's web admin if you wish to have only some of these fields included on your page or if you need non-PRO generated content updated.

What will my page look like?

This example shows the layout of your page's content and where in PRO it comes from:

The screenshot shows a faculty member's webpage for Chad R. Kraus. The page includes a portrait photo, a bio box with his name, title, and affiliation, a contact box with email and address, a CV link, a navigation menu with tabs for Bio, Academics, Publications, Presentations, Contracts/Grants, Awards/Honors, and Creative Works, and a main content area with a paragraph about his teaching and research, and an Education section listing his degrees.

Callouts indicate the source of the content:

- From Personal Information, Teaching/Research Statements, BIO screen (points to the bio box)
- From Personal Information, Teaching/Research Statements, BIO screen (points to the contact box)
- From Personal Information, Teaching/Research Statements, BIO screen (points to the navigation menu)
- Selected by choosing "Display on web page?" on individual records in Publications, Presentations, Contracts/Grants, Awards/Honors, and Artistic Works screens (points to the main content area)

Additional text on the left side of the screenshot:

From Personal Information, Teaching/Research Statements, BIO screen

You can include your web biography; teaching, research, and service statements; and teaching and research keywords

Please visit pro.ku.edu for more information